Autumn 2021

COVID-19 Update

- We are currently accepting applications for the 2022-2023 school year. The program is now full for the second semester of the 2021-2022 school year.
- From now on, all international students must be fully vaccinated with a vaccine approved in Canada, when they arrive in the country.
- Even if a study permit is no longer mandatory for international students that come for less than 6 months, it is still highly recommended to apply for one.

International students return

After a hectic year due to the global pandemic, in which it had been impossible to host international students due to health risks and travel restrictions, we are very excited to be able to offer more than 60 students the possibility to study in French in New Brunswick.

Contrary to the 2019-2020 school year in which high school students attended school only every other day, the rest of the time being online learning, students get to attend school every day this year. A big change that students certainly enjoy.

Concerning afterschool activities, most are still underway, with certain restrictions. For example, students have to be fully vaccinated to participate. School sports have the same restrictions which allows sports to be practiced indoors and outdoors. It is somewhat of a return to normalcy for New Brunswick students, as school life has resumed.

The international student's welcome at the airport was done with joy, while respecting the health measures. Host families showed their creativity to celebrate the student's arrival with beautiful signs.

Montserrat Perez Alvarez from Mexico is welcomed by her host family in her mother tongue!

We can see Louise Cellarius from Germany at her arrival in Moncton accompanied by her host family.

Emma Marie Leonhardt, from Germany, visits Lafiouk diner, a restaurant that has many beautiful Halloween decorations.

First time experience for Marla Tremanns from Germany, « Llama-zing Adventure », where you walk with llamas and alpacas by your side!

Vincent Enno Christopher Hommerich from Germany visits La fleur du pommier (Apple picking) in south-east of New Brunswick.

1. International students take advantage of their time in New Brunswick to showcase their traditional meals. In the photo: Gabriela Espinosa from Mexico eating fish tacos.

2. Julius Wendel from Germany prepared one of his cultural dishes for his host family. The dessert is called "Kaiserschmarrn".
